REV. MR. POWERS TELLS OF THREAT BY PENNELL.

Mrs. Hull Fails to Throw Any Light on the Mystery—Inquest Into the Death of Arthur Pennell Will Be Held on Monday and Both Cases Will Be Disposed of Together.

BUFFALO, March 26.-The Burdick murder inquiry concluded late this ternoon with the filing of the report of Chemist Hill.

The report on the contents of the whiskey bottle found under the table in the Burdick "den" was to the effect that it contained no traces of drugs or poison. No blood nor traces of it was found on the golf stick.

In the stomach some alcohol was found, but there was no trace of any drug or poison. Detectives Cornish and Coughlin were then called, but they told nothing

Judge Murphy then announced: "No more witnesses will be called. he Burdick inquest, either now or later on. The Pennell inquest will begun at 10 o'clock on Monday morning, and will be a separate and distinc se will not be rendered until after the close of the Pennell inquest, when both verdicts will be handed down simultaneously. This indicates how closely allied the two tragedies are in the official mind.

PENNELL MADE THREAT AGAINST BURDICK.

"Burdick told me during a talk we had that Pennell had never openly threatened his life, but he said that Pennell told him in as many words that unless he (Burdick) brought a halt, and quickly, to the divorce suit, something dreadful would happen. Burdick told me at that time that he feared Pennell, who wrecked his home, about as much as a child would a snail. I always thought afterward that Burdick considered Pennell a coward, and I don't think he feared him in the least."

The witness then continued to tell many interesting bits of converse

He said Burdick was a man of high moral character, a man with a determined mind and a person who could be relied upon to do his utmost in

CONTRADICTIONS IN HER TESTIMONY.

She also said her little sister said she had heard Papa go down stairs early in the morning, which was taken as an indication that some one was and said to be dissatisfied with the way moving about in the house early in the morning.

Mrs. Maria Hull, mother-in-law of Burdick, and the woman in charge of his household at the time of his tragic death, made a picturesque figure as she entered the court and slowly moved toward the witness chair. She walked with a fretful step, rather depending on Detective Holmlund to lead

She was clad entirely in black, a big widow's bonnet on her he wandered there while laboring under and a black veil hanging over her shoulders. As when she first appeared at the inquest, her face was an ashen gray, and she seemed nervous in the extreme. In her right hand she tightly held a bottle of smelling salts at which she sniffed constantly. Her nervousness was decidedly noticeable.

MADE NO NEW ADMISSIONS.

If District-Attorney Coatsworth expected to gain any further knowledge from Mrs. Huli which might throw some light on the mysterious murder he was disappoined.
